What kind of place is Eniwa?

A Beautiful "Flower City"

Where Nature and Urban Life Are in Harmony

Located just a 46-minute drive from central Sapporo and 30 minutes from New Chitose Airport, Eniwa offers a comfortable lifestyle where rich nature—symbolized by Mount Eniwa—blends harmoniously with urban convenience. Widely known as a beautiful "Flower City" with a passion for gardening, Eniwa continues to grow and flourish under its slogan. "A city of flowers, water, and greenery, where people connect and dreams blossom."

What's to see in Eniwa?

Explore Creative Gardens and Scenic Valleys

The people of Eniwa have long deepened their connections by growing and enjoying flowers. Their desire to share this circle of warmth with visitors gave birth to Eniwa's unique style of tourism—"Kankō" (a blend of "Kansho," meaning appreciation, and "Koryū," meaning exchange). What began with seven passionate volunteers who dreamed of filling their hometown with flowers and greenery has since spread throughout the community. Today, Eniwa is known as one of Hokkaido's leading producers of flower seedlings. At the heart of the city lies "Flower Base (Hanafuru)," a garden-themed attraction created through the collaboration of local citizens and the city administration. Here, you can enjoy seven beautifully designed gardens, each crafted with care and creativity by renowned gardeners. For those seeking to immerse themselves in nature, we recommend Eniwa Valley, located at the foot of Mount Eniwa. In the tranquility of this primeval forest, listen to the murmuring streams and let the peaceful sounds help you forget the noise of daily life—reconnecting you with yourself. (p.25)

A Charming City Worth Visiting at Least Once

I moved to Eniwa from outside Hokkaido in 2018. One of the things I love most about living here is how convenient the location is—Eniwa is close to both Sapporo and New Chitose Airport, and the expressways make it easy to travel anywhere in Hokkaido, whether to the south, east, or north. The climate is mild and comfortable throughout the year, and the changing seasons offer the beauty that Hokkaido is famous for. In spring, Lake Eniwa transforms its appearance with the deepening shades of green, while in autumn, the stunning combination of colorful leaves and waterfalls creates a magical landscape where you can truly feel close to nature. For daily shopping, I often visit "Kanona," the local farmers market, where I can buy plenty of fresh and delicious produce grown right here in Eniwa. When I want to relax, my favorite place is "Eniwa Onsen Honoka," where you can enjoy moist hot springs and stone saunas at a reasonable price. Another must-see spot is the "Flower Base (Hanafuru)," which opened in November 2020. In spring, it bursts into vibrant color as countless flowers come into bloom. Eniwa is a city rich in nature yet full of everyday convenience—a truly wonderful place to visit, even if just once in your life.

The Blessings and History of Eniwa

Life Nurtured by the Land and Water

Blessed with fertile soil and abundant water, Eniwa is often called "the city of rivers." The Karimba Archaeological Site, a nationally designated historic site located in the Kogane area of Eniwa, tells us that people of the Jomon period—around 3,000 years ago—were already living here, sustained by these natural gifts. Over the centuries, the way of life evolved from hunting, fishing, and gathering to crop cultivation and dairy farming. Yet, throughout each era, people have always enjoyed the blessings of this rich land. Despite the challenges of a cold northern climate, Eniwa's residents even succeeded in cultivating rice—the first achievement of its kind in Hokkaido. Today, the blessings of the land and water continue to bring abundant harvests through rice and field crops, as well as the cultivation of beautiful flowers.

Experience the True Essence of Eniwa

Farming, Dairy, and Horseback Riding Adventures

In Eniwa, where agriculture and dairy farming thrive, visitors can enjoy hands-on experiences such as harvesting fresh vegetables or milking cows at local farms and ranches. A popular activity is a barbecue featuring locally grown vegetables, cultivated with minimal use of chemical fertilizers or pesticides. You can also try your hand at making dishes and products using freshly picked vegetables and rich, fresh milk. For those seeking outdoor adventure, horseback trekking at local riding clubs offers an unforgettable way to explore Eniwa's landscapes—perfect even for beginners. (p.13)

Conversations that Create New Connections

During my student days, I traveled across Japan and experienced the kindness of people everywhere I went. Through those journeys, I learned the joy of connecting with others—and they also helped me rediscover the charm of my own hometown. In Eniwa, flowers and greenery can be found throughout the city—along sidewalks, near the station, and in the gardens of many homes. Cherry blossoms in spring, rows of ginkgo trees in summer—riding my bicycle through the streets while admiring the well-tended gardens still brings back fond memories. It was these experiences that inspired me to open a café called "agracrock" in 2017 (now closed). I wanted to create a place in my hometown where anyone could drop by, relax, and feel at ease—and that dream brought me happiness, too. Today, the café has become a space where many people come together—flower enthusiasts, homemakers, students, and office workers alike. Through casual conversations, new connections are born every day. I hope that this warm circle of people will continue to expand, welcoming even those who come to visit Eniwa, and make our city an even more wonderful place to be.

The Charm of Eniwa, the City of Flowers

Citizen-Led "Flower City" Initiatives

Eniwa's "Flower City" movement began as a citizen-led initiative to beautify the local environment with flowers. It all started in 1961, when a group of seven volunteers formed an organization that grew flower seedlings on land borrowed from cooperative farmers and distributed them to local elementary and junior high schools. Over time, this activity embraced the spirit of gardening—creating and enjoying beauty—enriching residents' daily lives while fostering new connections among people. What began as a small community effort eventually evolved into a cultural movement, one that not only reflects Eniwa's unique local character but also continues to create new value through harmony between people and nature.

Enjoy the Connections That Bloom Through Flowers

I first became interested in gardening after I finished raising my children and began helping my husband with his gardening hobby. Wanting to learn more about flowers, I joined the Megumino Flower Gardening Club. Through activities such as maintaining flowerbeds and serving as a flower guide who shows visitors around gardens in the city, what I enjoy most is chatting with people who share the same passion for flowers. When the Open Garden season begins and homeowners welcome visitors into their private gardens, I sometimes have students visit mine as part of their classes. Meeting people I wouldn't normally encounter in everyday life is always such a delightful experience. In the mornings, as I tend to my flowers, local children often greet me with, "Good morning! Your flowers look beautiful again today!" It warms my heart to know they remember me as the flower lady. If visitors to Eniwa can also share conversations through flowers, I believe this joy will grow even deeper—just like the blossoms we nurture together.

From Admiring Flowers to Creating with Them

In Eniwa, the city is also actively working to expand the possibilities of flowers. Many cafés with gardens and restaurants decorated with flowers can be found throughout the city, where visitors can enjoy creative dishes that combine floral inspiration with locally sourced ingredients. A variety of flower-based products have also been developed. Preserved flowers and herbariums, designed to maintain their beauty for longer, are popular as interior décor items. Other favorites include perfumes, aroma candles, and teas that capture the fragrance of flowers, as well as sweets, accessories, and keychains inspired by floral motifs. Through these creative endeavors, Eniwa's "Flower City" initiative is blossoming into a new form of craftsmanship—one that transforms the beauty of flowers into lasting, tangible creations.

Creating the Future of Eniwa, the City of Flowers

I started working at my family business, Sun Garden, around the time when houses began to appear in Megumino and the Sapporo Beer factory was being built. When the first "Eniwa Flower and Living Exhibition" was held, the slogan "Green for the town, flowers for the windows" inspired us to decorate event venues and residential areas with colorful blooms. The passion and dedication of the organizing committee members at that time deeply moved me. Working together to create something meaningful was such a joyful experience—one that became a driving force behind my more than 30 years of involvement in both flower-related work and community activities. In Eniwa, many residents take pride in beautifying their own gardens, planting flowers around their neighborhoods, and caring for these spaces through regular clearing and maintenance. I feel proud to live in a city that has nurtured and protected its flower-filled landscapes for over 60 years. The establishment of "Flower Base (Hanafuru)" in 2020 represents both the culmination of Eniwa's long-standing Flower City efforts and a new beginning. As we look to the future, I hope people of all generations will come together—sharing ideas on how to connect daily life with flower tourism, and continuing to grow the beautiful culture of flowers in Eniwa.

Where to Eat in Eniwa

Enjoy "Flower City"-Style Restaurants and Cafés

In Eniwa, where gardening is a beloved part of life, you'll find many farm restaurants and garden cafés that reflect the city's "Flower City" charm. From early summer to autumn, relax at terrace seats surrounded by flowers and forests, and enjoy tea or a meal in the gentle breeze. At restaurants attached to farms and dairies, you can savor dishes made with freshly picked vegetables and freshly made cheese. Eniwa is also home to many patisseries and bakeries that take pride in using locally sourced ingredients—another delightful taste of the city's natural abundance.

Enjoy Eniwa in Just One Day!

Fun for Families and Couples Alike

Want to make the most of Eniwa in just one day? Here are our recommended spots, organized into seven themed areas to help you explore efficiently and enjoyably. If you'd like to experience Eniwa's flowers, start your journey at "Flower Base (Hanafuru)", the city's main hub, and stroll through the Megumino area. Those who prefer a more active outing can cycle around the Kogane area, visiting charming cafés and local shops, or drive out to the Banjiri and Farm areas to relax amid pristine forests and waterfalls. Whether you're short on time or have a full day to spend, Eniwa offers a variety of experiences to match your pace and style of travel. (For details, please see the Area Guide on p.15)

Where to Shop for Souvenirs

Popular Spots for "Made in Eniwa" Gifts

Two of Eniwa's most popular shopping spots—the "Kanona" Farmers Market and the Road & Riverside Station "Flower Road Eniwa"—welcome as many as 8,000 visitors a day from both inside and outside the city. At Kanona, you'll find a wide variety of locally produced goods, including fresh vegetables, fruits, and flowers, as well as sweets, pickles, tofu, and other handmade products created by local farmers and businesses. At Flower Road Eniwa, you can browse a rich selection of souvenirs from Hokkaido and Eniwa, such as rice cakes (daifuku and ohagi) made with locally grown glutinous rice, handmade soaps, and charming local crafts—perfect for personal treats or thoughtful gifts to take home.

Eni Dora

A dorayaki (sweet pancake sandwich) made with plenty of Hokkaido-grown Eosu pumpkin kneaded into both the batter and the cream. (Shop location: Road and Riverside Station "Flower Road Eniwa")

Mame Daifuku

A soft cake (dorayaki) with mochi sweet bean paste and red bean, with slices of yuzu (the mochi dough made from Eniwa-grown glutinous rice).

Sweet Pumpkin

Layers of pumpkin in cream, whipped cream, and breaded with slice yuzu (the mochi dough made from Eniwa-grown glutinous rice).

Eniwa Jingisukan (Grilled Mutton)

Tender, low-calorie, and low-cholesterol lamb, marinated in a special house sauce.

Eniwa Tofu

Tofu made from Eniwa-grown "Toyonari" soybeans, characterized by its rich aroma and pronounced sweetness.

Ecorin Village

At Ecorin Village, pasture-based sheep farming plays a central role in its agricultural activities. More than half of the 150-hectare site is covered with grassland. From spring to autumn, sheep are released to graze freely in the fields under a system of rotational grazing, moving them to new pastures where the grass is best. Depending on the season, you may even see flocks of ewes and lambs grazing together—a delightful sight to enjoy while walking or camping in the area.
